

Old and young enjoy 'big draw day'

by LYNSEY FLYNN

LOCAL residents, old and young got their hands dirty last week at the Tot Art's official Big Draw day in Logie Kirk Hall.

Just under 100 parents and children attended the last Saturday's Big draw event.

Wendy Briggs who is the artist who set up Tot Art just over two years ago said: "It was great so many new faces who now know about Tot Art and The Big Draw."

"The most popular was joining in with the 30 foot group drawing of the Wallace Monument."

As the visitors entered the admission free event in the Kirk Hall, they drew round their hands.

Wendy was delighted to see grown ups really get in to the spirit of things, she said: "Grown ups who had not picked up a pencil to draw in years, took off their shoes and added dragons and knights to the Wallace Monument."

Other activities which children and grown ups alike enjoyed participating in, was using sticks and leaves collected in Causewayhead park to draw and print with.

They drew themselves in Causewayhead Park with the Wallace Monument in the background and drawing their own houses and maps of how they got to Logie Kirk Hall.

Wendy added: "It was wonderful to see so many people really enjoying themselves drawing."

"The drawings by children of

GETTING THEIR HANDS DIRTY: Parents and children enjoyed drawing on the picture of the Wallace Monument.

IN YOU COME: The poster that greeted the visitors last week.

themselves in the local park was a real insight into how children view the Wallace Monument up above them, whilst they are playing in the park."

Tot Art classes focus on the importance of the creative process and so build children's confidence.

Classes are structured in order that whilst the children think they are just having fun they are learning unique and valuable skills.

For more information on Tot Art log on to www.totart.org.uk